

Transitional Arrangements: Options

198A

(9) Within six months after the commencement date of the Labour Relations Amendment Act, 2013 a temporary employment service must renegotiate all services which it procured for a client in terms of section 198(1) before the commencement date, for the purpose of complying with this section.

198B

(12) Within six months after the commencement date of the Labour Relations Amendment Act, 2013 an employer must ensure that all its fixed term contracts in respect of its employees other than the employees contemplated in subsection(2) which were entered into before the commencement date are renegotiated for the purpose of complying with this section.

198C

(6) Within six months after the commencement date of the Labour Relations Amendment Act, 2013 an employer must ensure that all its part-time employment practices in respect of its employees other than the employees contemplated in subsection(2) which were entered into before the commencement date complies with this section.