SUBMISSION TO THE PORTFOLIO COMMITTEE ON ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT _Infrastructure Development Bill_

1. Background

This submission comes against the backdrop of print media advertisements (10 November 2013), inviting members of the public, individuals and stakeholders to comment on the Infrastructure Development Bill.

The overriding objective in my view, of the advertisement, is to solicit inputs, concerns and comments from all and sundry regarding the future Infrastructure Development of South Africa. I make this representation in my personal capacity as I do in this submission, and motivated by the following factors:-

- For most of my life, I have been confronted with challenges relating to lack of infrastructure, which could have largely influenced the personality and character of my being today. I suppose, this applies to most of individuals.
- The larger part of my life has been devoted to improving the quality of lives of individuals and communities through infrastructure provisioning.

- I am a professional local government practitioner with experience spanning more than 15 years, and in this regards, my conscience obliges me to comment on the subject matter.
- I have been a Chief Executive Officer of a State Owned Enterprise, in which my responsibility was to implement infrastructure projects for the establishment of a trade hub.
- Altogether, in my professional career in Government, for more than 15 years, I have implemented several and varied infrastructure projects worth of more than R200m.

Purpose

To submit comments and highlight areas of concern with regard to the Infrastructure Development Bill. The submission is motivated and informed by the desire to Build a Nation, Grow the economy and Develop a responsible citizenry. This will in the long-term, result in us having a vibrant and self-sufficient economy, healthy and motivated citizenry, who are devoted and loyal to the Constitution of the Republic.

Definite recommendations will be made as far as this is practical and possible. Comments, observations and recommendations made in this submission, are not finite and are not a result of any involved research activity, but largely based on empirical experiences. My comments are as follows:-

It will be important to be explicit about Infrastructure projects that the RSA would like to venture into, with SADCC Countries. The pronouncement on these projects should see the obvious mutual benefit of countries involved in such project/s.

With individual industrialization of countries, each country has its own peculiar strengths and experiences from which lessons can be drawn from, as part of infrastructure development projects.

It will be key to identify global partners, in order to tap in, on their specific industrial skills development, for purposes of our development.

Although the Bill recognizes consultations with relevant Ministers for purpose and objects of the Bill, the Bill is not specific regarding the exact role that Institutions of Learning such as the FET's, Universities, Colleges and Private Institutions are going to play in support of objectives and purpose of the Bill. These roles must provide direction as regards what we want to do as a country, and they must be consistent with our economic development objectives, arising from infrastructure planning and development. This will largely assist with skills planning for the remainder of the Republic. Regulations dealing with these issues should run concurrent with consultations on the Bill, rather to wait for ascension and passing of the Infrastructure Act, and the development of Regulations, later. Amendments will be better as they will be coming from implementation experiences.

For the simple reason that we do not possess all the requisite skills, regulated Partnerships would be highly recommended in this regards, as these Partnerships will provide direct and targeted skills requirements for specific or specified economic sectors in the economic development of the country. Infrastructure development in the country provides a window through which we can develop and attain this objective. This, must always, be consistent with the direction of our economic development and our economic policy imperatives. Partnerships are meant to produce a particular impact and specific outcomes on a defined time–line, and are not eternal.

The Integrated Development Plans (IDP's) of Local Government, remain the foremost planning document in municipalities. Projects (SIPs) coming from the National Infrastructure Plan, and those arising from the Infrastructure Act, must find way to the IDP's, with accompanying Resolution/s of Council/s. This will promote inclusivity and ownership of Projects.

Since 1994, there has been Projects of a national and provincial character that did not really take off the ground. Similarly, there has been Regional or Provincial Projects that somehow collapsed or ended nowhere. There is a variety of reasons for the above, which includes, but not limited to lack of political will and self–interests. For purposes of what the Bill seeks to achieve, are these projects still relevant and viable today. Do we have cause and reason to believe that those projects will paddle us to the new horizon as epitomized in the Infrastructure Bill? Are current and existing conditions the same as the ones that necessitated the design and proposals of those projects at that time? Do we need to bank these projects, modify and attune them to current realities or discard them completely? Do these projects, in their current form, have the capacity to complement the new planning in the form of the Infrastructure Bill?

Path to the new infrastructural horizon, in the “new” infrastructural landscape of the Republic, must be clear and defined, without any historical infrastructural baggage or debts. If we do not do anything about these matters, they will continue to haunt government with aspersions that government failed and did not perform.

If left out hanging, these matters have the potential to taint the integrity and work of the Presidential Infrastructure Coordinating Commission. We need to round off, and close chapters.

Projects in the National Infrastructure Plan are like South Africa in heaven. These Projects are necessary and vital for the economic development of the Republic in the immediate and long term. I do not see any problem with that. There are long-term benefits to be derived. The Department of Human Settlements in concert with Local Government, have a pivotal role in the design and implementation of infrastructure projects, especially in the context of service delivery. The Bill is too quiet and needs to be explicit on the role and function of Human Settlement Department and Local Government. This is for the simple reason that, the portfolio of infrastructure falling under the domain of Human Settlements Department is what I refer to as the "Bread and Butter Infrastructure". The development of this infrastructure has immediate impact and it is what ordinary person sees and feels, it is about the dignity and quality of life of communities:- Housing, Roads and Stormwater, Electrification of Households, Sanitation. Over and above these, infrastructure such as Sanitation, Taxi Ranks, Community Halls, Sporting and Recreational Facilities, Pedestrian Walk-paths and Bridges, are the window through which one can judge the approximate quality of life of a community. These Infrastructures are currently in a backlog and have more to say about the dignity of a community. The Bill is too quiet and not explicit, as to how Government is now going to deal with these, notwithstanding the consultations with relevant portfolio Ministers.

Whilst I appreciate the fact that there will be Provincial Roadshows and Public Hearings on the Bill, I view this to be one or the other form of consultation. If Government was to call for proposal on Infrastructure Development across the country, I would still view this as consultation in one form or another. This exercise will allow the National Government to develop a data-bank, because these proposals will now be the property of National Government, and will provide some sense and semblances to National Government, as regards the thinking of municipalities, entities, private individuals and communities about the economic development and infrastructure development of the country. Objectives, guidelines and parameters of this exercise must be clearly defined.

From the Bill, the Secretariat will require a very strong and articulate Legal Services Department, when viewed against the mandate and objectives of the Commission. For operations of the Commission, especially at the level of the Management Committee, the Steering Committee and the Secretariat, we need to know what skills and competencies do we or will we require already. Departments, entities and municipalities seconding individuals to serve in the Steering Committee, must be weary of this requirement if, there is going to be zeal and efficiency in operations of the Commission across its structures. Proxies for individuals representing Departments, entities and municipalities must be limited to one, of the same faces, in order to ensure consistency and continuity in the work of the Commission. I understand the philosophy and wisdom behind the Steering Committee having to approve projects and project plans.

To me, the Steering Committee, at best, has the capacity to develop project plans up to a point where they can approve. The responsibility to approve must be left with the Management Committee.

Without being pedantic, we all have a fair understanding of the financial situation of municipalities. The Bill needs to elaborate further, regarding funding of project appraisals and feasibilities.

For purposes of my representation in this submission to the Portfolio Committee on Economic Development, I am willing to discuss any part or the whole of this submission to any designated official/s or representatives, with respect to this matter, as far as this is practical and possible.

I wish to express my sincere gratitude and thanks for the opportunity to submit comments of this nature, and I trust these comments shall serve the good purpose and object of the intended exercise.

Sincerely Yours.
