Observations

Observations Conflict of Interest

Eskom regulates Conflicts of Interests of its employees through a number of policies and procedures that require:

- That Eskom officials above a certain level annually declare all conflicts of interest, directorships, memberships, details of any related or inter-related persons or other associates that do business with Eskom, whether a conflict exists or not.
- That Eskom officials do not, without the prior written approval of the manager concerned, become involved in private work for remuneration outside of Eskom or accept a directorship in a company, obtain membership of a closed corporation or a partnership or a joint venture.

Employees are prohibited from having a personal or other interest in an Eskom contract, whether as a supplier, an advisor, or by virtue of being a director or owner of a business, or in any other capacity. This includes third-party related transactions with an indirect link to an Eskom contract (for example, having a personal or other interest in a business that has an interest in a Supplier to Eskom)

In terms of section 17(1) of PRECCA a public official who holds an interest in any contract emanating from or connected with the public body in which he is employed is guilty of an offence.

Observations Conflict of Interest

- Desktop analyses of available databases (e.g. CIPC data and Eskom's vendor, employee, DOI and SAP payment databases) do not always identify the links between officials and Eskom vendors.
- The above analyses will only identify the official's link to an entity if he/she is reflected as a director of the entity on the CIPC database. The following instances will not be picked up:
 - Where the Directors of the Eskom Vendor are family members or friends of the official in question;
 - Where the Directors of the Eskom Vendor are co-directors of the Eskom official in other entities that are not Eskom vendors;
- In some instances Eskom officials approach complete strangers to set up sub-contractors and bank accounts through which to channel funds to officials.
- These links can only be identified from a review of bank accounts, email communications, cell phone records etc.
- What further complicates the identification of conflicts is that Eskom vendors often pay kickbacks to officials indirectly e.g. by paying the creditors of the official directly (e.g. by paying the official's child's school fees or by paying the official's service providers/suppliers directly)

Observations Coal Procurement and Transportation

- Eskom officials facilitate contracts with coal providers despite concerns about coal quality raised by technical experts.
- A number of technical reports questioned the suitability of coal from the Brakfontein mine for the Majuba PS and the ability of the mine to produce the required quantities.
- Despite these concerns, a contract was entered into with Tegeta at an inflated price.
- Laboratory testing processes were interfered with by submitting coal that was not from the Brakfontein mine for testing. This happened due to the deliberate actions of Eskom officials who:
 - Made sure that samples for testing were obtained in the absence of Eskom observers
 - Facilitated the swapping of samples by transporting samples to the laboratory in a truck that was not fitted with the contractually required tracking device
- The mine delivered non-compliant coal from areas that are not stipulated in the contract. This is achieved by manipulating pre-certification processes at the mine (i.e. certifying coal that is non-compliant as compliant)
- Once the coal is delivered at the Power Station no further quality checks are conducted before coal from different origins are mixed. It is imperative that coal be tested upon arrival at Power Stations and prior to being mixed with coal from other mines. This is not currently taking place.

Observations Coal Procurement and Transportation

- In order to circumvent controls regulating coal transportation pricing, Eskom officials collude with mines by entering into CSAs where coal prices are inflated to accommodate transportation costs.
- Transportation contracts are then entered into between the mine and transporters linked to Eskom officials. Due to the fact that the transportation contract is between the mine and the Transporter, the pricing is not visible to Eskom.
- Often such coal is procured from mines that are far away from the relevant Power Station instead of from mines that are producing coal at the required quality that are situated close to the Power Station in order to increase transportation costs.
- Mines and Eskom officials collude with transporters and/or truck drivers to mix poor quality coal from certain mines with good quality coal from other mines – thereby ensuring that the contractually required quantities are delivered to the relevant Power Stations.
- Due to the fact that coal quality is often not tested once coal is delivered to the power station it is not possible to identify the source of sub-standard coal.
- Eskom can only mitigate the risk of this happening by installing automated real-time combustion testing facilities that are able to link test results to a specific truck, and therefore source, as soon as the coal arrive at the power station, and before offloading. This would ensure that sub-standard coal can be linked and returned to the mine of origin while Eskom will not be liable to pay for the coal, nor incur damage to its equipment due to the overly abrasiveness of the bad coal.

Observations Build Projects

Our findings in many of our investigations in relation to build projects reflect that claims management is an area that is abused by Eskom officials and Contractors alike in the following manner:

- Contractors submit inflated, unsubstantiated, duplicated claims that are settled by Eskom officials – often by way of global settlements.
- Contractors refuse to submit substantiation for their claims and Eskom officials allow them to get away with this practice.
- Contractors and officials manipulate claims assessment processes by providing incorrect/selective information.
- Officials deliberately fail to timeously instruct claims assessors to defend Eskom against claims leaving them with unreasonably short timeframes within which to adequately prepare defences.
- Officials provide confidential information on Eskom's legal position/potential defences to the opposition.
- Officials circumvent the claims assessment process by issuing unnecessary and inflated variation orders.

Systemic Recommendations

Systemic Recommendations

- Thorough vetting of officials upon entering Eskom is not enough, Eskom should consider implementing contractual terms that:
 - Allow for access to the personal information of the employee, such as bank accounts of the employee (and his/her spouse & children), e-mails and cellular phone communications.
 - Allow for voice stress analyses and lie detector tests to be conducted routinely.
- Continued monitoring of high risk officials is required (such as SCM practitioners, contract managers, financial staff etc.)
 - Monitor the lifestyles and financial transactions of high risk officials
 - Monitor declarations of interest
- Manage information obtained through DOIs by both officials and bidders – e.g. if an official declares his interest in a business, ensure that such business do not appear on Eskom's vendor database and if they do, remove them.
- Build a database of high risk officials/contractors identified in forensic and audit reports/bid documents etc.

Systemic Recommendations

- Develop a system to red flag transactions approved by high risk officials on the SAP payment system or payments made to high risk suppliers/contractors.
- Improve transparency in relation to procurement processes - Transparency provisions enable processes and decisions to be monitored and reviewed, helps ensure that decision-makers can be held accountable and also helps open public procurement to more competition.
- Transparency needs to pervade all steps in the procurement cycle, from the earliest decisions on needs assessments, to the development of procurement plans and budget allocations, to bid evaluations, to implementing the contracts (and any contract amendments)

Systemic Recommendations

- Independent expert oversight over claims and variations processes (the governance applied to managing claims should equally be applied to the assessment of variations).
- Re-baseline the Kusile and Medupi Project Works to accurately determine Eskom's exposure to the time and associated costs across all package works. This will provide Eskom with certainty as to its future capital expenditure to completion.
- Aggressively defend open claims against Eskom.
- Apply a consistent and forensic approach to the assessment of claims for additional time and cost in strict adherence to the contract.
- Ensure that project documentation and records to maintained to rebut, by way substantiated alternative assessment, inflated contractor claims.
- Eskom's first line of defence, is its construction project management teams. It is therefore essential that these individuals are properly skilled and working in Eskom's best interests at all times. Central oversight of contract management is required.
- Recover historic overpayments.

New Allegations Received

New Allegations

The SIU has been inundated with receiving new allegations. Many of these allegations fell outside of the existing SIU Eskom Proclamations.

As a result of the seriousness of these allegations a motivation has been submitted to the DoJ to extend the scope of the SIU's mandate both in terms of time and focus areas. This process is advanced and the SIU is confident that the extension will be approved.

The State Capture Recommendations

The SIU is obliged to motivate for a new Proclamation that will allow the SIU to investigate the specific recommendations that have been made by the State Capture Commission.

The SIU has undergone the necessary internal processes and have made a submission to the DoJ for approval of a new proclamation that will deal specifically with the recommendations of the State Capture Commission recommendations in so far as it relates to Eskom.
