PREAMBLE

SINCE the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996, commits the Republic of South Africa and its people to establish a society that is based on democratic values of social justice, human dignity, equality and the advancement of human rights and freedoms, non-racialism and non-sexism;

AND MINDFUL THAT—

- section 9(1) of the Constitution provides that everyone is equal before the law and has the right to equal protection and benefit of the law;
- section 9(3) and (4) of the Constitution provides that neither the State nor any person may, directly or indirectly, discriminate unfairly against anyone on one or more grounds, including race, gender, sex, pregnancy, marital status, ethnic or social origin, colour, sexual orientation, age, disability, religion, conscience, belief, culture, language and birth, and that national legislation must be enacted to prevent or prohibit unfair discrimination;
- section 10 of the Constitution provides that everyone has inherent dignity and the right to have their dignity respected and protected;
- the Promotion of Equality and Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act, 2000 (Act No. 4 of 2000), prohibits unfair discrimination, hate speech and harassment and requires the State to promote the constitutional imperatives enshrined in section 9 of the Constitution; and
- section 16 of the Constitution gives everybody the right to freedom of expression, including—
 - freedom of the press and other media;
 - freedom to receive or impart information or ideas;

- freedom of artistic creativity; and
 - academic freedom and freedom of scientific research,
- but that the right to freedom of expression does not extend to—
- propaganda for war;
 - incitement of imminent violence; or
 - advocacy of hatred that is based on race, ethnicity, gender or religion, and that constitutes incitement to cause harm;

AND BEARING IN MIND THAT—

- section 7(2) of the Constitution provides that the State must respect, protect, promote and fulfil all the rights enshrined in the Bill of Rights, which is the cornerstone of democracy in South Africa;
- section 8(2) of the Constitution provides that a provision of the Bill of Rights binds a natural or a juristic person if, and to the extent that, it is applicable, taking into account the nature of the right and the nature of any duty imposed by the right;
- the severity of the emotional and psychological impact of hate crimes and hate speech extends beyond the victim, to the group to which the victim belongs or is perceived to belong; and
- South Africa has committed itself to uphold the Declaration adopted at the United Nations World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance held in Durban;

AND SINCE the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, to which the Republic is a signatory, requires States Parties to declare, among others, an offence punishable by law all dissemination of ideas based on racial superiority or hatred, incitement to racial discrimination, as well as acts of violence or incitement to such acts against any race or group of persons of another colour or ethnic origin,

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE PREVENTION AND COMBATING OF HATE CRIMES AND HATE SPEECH BILL, 2018

1. BACKGROUND

- 1.1 The founding provisions of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996, in section 1, set out certain basic values, amongst others, human dignity, the achievement of equality and the advancement of human rights and freedoms and non-racialism and non-sexism. The Bill of Rights, in section 9 of the Constitution, prohibits direct or indirect unfair discrimination against anyone on the grounds set out in section 9(3) of the Constitution, namely, race, gender, sex, pregnancy, marital status, ethnic or social origin, colour, sexual orientation, age, disability, religion, conscience, belief, culture, language and birth. The Bill of Rights, in section 10, gives everyone the right to dignity and, in section 12, gives everyone the right to freedom and security of the person, which includes the right to be free from all forms of violence from either public or private sources. In section 16, the Bill of Rights gives everyone the right to freedom of expression. This right is, however, limited in that it does not extend to propaganda for war, incitement to imminent violence or advocacy of hatred that is based on race, ethnicity, gender or religion, which constitutes incitement to cause harm. The State must, in terms of section 7(2) of the Constitution, “respect, protect, promote and fulfil the rights in the Bill of Rights”.
- 1.2 It is against this backdrop that the Prevention and Combating of Hate Crimes and Hate Speech Bill (“the Bill”) has its origins. The Bill is intended to address frequently occurring and sometimes violent conduct of persons who are motivated by clear and defined prejudices.

2. OBJECTS OF BILL

The primary aim of the Bill is to create the offences of hate crimes and hate speech and to put in place measures to prevent and combat these offences.

3. DISCUSSION AND CLAUSE-BY-CLAUSE ANALYSIS

3.1 Clause 1

Clause 1 of the Bill contains definitions which are self-explanatory. The definition of “court” excludes district courts from the application of the Act. Only the High Court and regional courts, where there are more experienced presiding officers, may deal with the adjudication of these offences. This clause also contains definitions which are necessary for purposes of clause 4(1)(b) when hate speech is distributed in cyberspace.

3.2 Clause 2

Clause 2 sets out the objects of the Bill.

3.3 Clause 3

3.3.1 Clause 3 creates the offence of hate crime. A hate crime is committed if a person commits any recognised offence under any law, referred to as the “underlying offence” and the commission of that offence is motivated by prejudice or intolerance on the basis of one or more characteristics or perceived characteristics of the victim, as listed in the Bill, a family member of the victim or the victim’s association with or support for a group of persons who share the said characteristics. The common law offence of crimen injuria and the offence referred to in clause 4(1) of the Bill are excluded from the ambit of clause 3.

3.3.2 A prosecution in respect of this offence may only be instituted on the authorisation of the Director of Public Prosecutions having jurisdiction.

3.4 Clause 4

- 3.4.1 Clause 4 creates the offence of hate speech. Clause 4(1)(a) provides that any person who intentionally publishes, propagates, advocates, makes available or communicates anything to one or more persons in a manner that could reasonably be construed to demonstrate a clear intention to be harmful or to incite harm and to promote or propagate hatred based on defined grounds is guilty of the offence of hate speech. Clause 4(1)(b) creates an offence when hate speech material is intentionally distributed or made available in cyber space, and the said person knows that such electronic communication constitutes hate speech.
- 3.4.2 Clause 4(2) is critically important because it exempts certain communications from criminal sanction as contemplated in the Bill. The exemptions found in the provisions of clause 4(2)(a) to (c) of the Bill are nothing new but confirm the right of freedom of expression as enshrined in section 16(1) of the Constitution, which includes—
- (a) freedom of the press and other media;
 - (b) freedom to receive or impart information or ideas;
 - (c) freedom of artistic creativity; and
 - (d) academic freedom and freedom of scientific research.
- 3.4.3 The provisions of clause 4(2)(a) to (c) of the Bill exclude from the ambit of hate speech anything done in good faith in the course of engagement in any bona fide artistic creativity, performance or other form of expression, academic or scientific inquiry or fair and accurate reporting or commentary in the public interest. Clause 4(2)(d) is a new exemption and excludes from the ambit of hate speech any bona fide interpretation and proselytising or espousing of any religious conviction, tenet, belief, teaching, doctrine or writings. However, paragraphs (a) to (d) will not qualify for the exemption from hate speech if it advocates hatred that constitutes incitement to cause harm based on any protected grounds.
- 3.4.4 A prosecution in respect of this offence may only be instituted on the authorisation of the Director of Public Prosecutions having jurisdiction.

3.5 Clause 5

Clause 5 deals with victim impact statements. Clause 5 sets out what a victim impact statement is, namely a sworn statement or affirmation by the victim which reflects the physical, psychological, social, economic or any other consequences of a hate crime on a victim. The contents of this statement will be admissible as evidence in court, unless good cause to the contrary is shown.

3.6 Clause 6

Clause 6 deals with penalties or orders.

- 3.6.1 Clause 6(1) provides for penalties in respect of hate crimes and provides that a person who is convicted of a hate crime is subject to the penalties set out in section 276 or 297 of the Criminal Procedure Act, 1977 (Act No. 51 of 1977), subject to the penal jurisdiction of that court (whether it be the High Court or the regional court). Section 276 of the Criminal Procedure Act, 1977, provides the sentencing options which courts may impose, including imprisonment, periodical imprisonment, a fine and correctional supervision. Section 297 of the Criminal Procedure Act, 1977, provides for the conditional or unconditional postponement or suspension of sentences, cautions and reprimands.

- 3.6.2 Clause 6(2) provides that if a person is convicted of a hate crime which is not subject to the obligatory minimum sentencing regime as provided for in section 51 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1997 (Act No. 105 of 1997), and in the case of any damage, injury or loss of income or support, the court must regard the fact that the person has been convicted of a hate crime as an aggravating circumstance.
- 3.6.3 Clause 6(3) provides for penalties applicable in the case of hate speech, namely a fine or imprisonment for a period not exceeding eight years or to both a fine and such imprisonment

3.7 Clause 7

- 3.7.1 Clause 7(1) requires that the National Commissioner of the South African Police Service must, after consultation with the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development and the National Director of Public Prosecutions, issue national instructions to members of the South African Police Service who are tasked with investigating the alleged commission of hate crimes and hate speech.
- 3.7.2 Clause 7(2) requires the National Director of Public Prosecutions, after consultation with the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development and the National Commissioner of the South African Police Service, to issue directives on relevant matters and these directives must be complied with by prosecutors in the execution of their functions under the Bill.

3.8 Clause 8

Clause 8 requires the Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice, after consultation with the Cabinet member responsible for policing and the National Director of Public Prosecutions, to make regulations on the information to be collected and collated by the South African Police Service and the National Prosecuting Authority, respectively. The information obtained must be made available to Parliament, to the Chairperson of the South African Human Rights Commission, to the Chairperson of the Commission for Gender Equality and to the Chairperson of the Commission for the Promotion and Protection of the Rights of Cultural, Religious and Linguistic Communities.

3.9 Clause 9

Clause 9 provides for the prevention of hate crimes and hate speech and requires the State, the South African Human Rights Commission, the Commission for Gender Equality and the Commission for the Promotion and Protection of the Rights of Cultural, Religious and Linguistic Communities to promote awareness of the prohibition against these offences, with the view to preventing and combating them.

3.10 Clause 10

Clause 10 empowers the Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice to make regulations as required by the Bill.

3.11 Clause 11

Clause 11, read with the Schedule to the Bill, sets out the consequential amendments to other Acts of Parliament, required by the Bill, namely amendments to the Criminal Procedure Act, 1977, the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1997 (dealing with compulsory minimum sentences), and the Child Justice Act, 2008 (Act No. 75 of 2008). The amendments in the Schedule to the Bill only relate to hate crimes and not to hate speech.

3.12 Clause 12

Clause 12 contains the short title and commencement.

4. FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS

The main financial implications for the State will be in the form of implementing the provisions of clause 7, dealing with instructions and directives, notably training in respect thereof and clause 9, dealing with the duty of the State to promote awareness of the prohibition against hate crimes and hate speech, aimed at the prevention of these offences. Existing budgets will be used for this purpose. No additional funding is being sought to implement the Bill.

The deadline for comment was set as 1 December 2016, which was subsequently extended to 31 January 2017. Approximately 75 854 submissions, which included petitions, were received on the Bill. These comments were taken into consideration in the finalisation of the Bill.

6. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

- 6.1 The Constitution prescribes the procedure for the classification of Bills. A Bill must be correctly classified so that it does not become inconsistent with the Constitution.
- 6.2 The Bill has been considered against the provisions of the Constitution relating to the tagging of Bills and against the functional areas listed in Schedule 4 (functional areas of concurrent national and provincial legislative competence) and Schedule 5 (functional areas of exclusive provincial legislative competence) to the Constitution.
- 6.3 The established test for classification of a Bill is that any Bill whose provisions in substantial measure fall within a functional area listed in Schedule 4 to the Constitution must be classified in terms of that Schedule. The process is concerned with the question of how the Bill should be considered by the provinces and in the National Council of Provinces. Furthermore, how a Bill must be considered by the provincial legislatures depends on whether it affects the provinces. The more the Bill affects the interests, concerns and capacities of the provinces, the more say the provinces should have on the contents of the Bill.
- 6.4 Therefore the issue to be determined is whether the provisions of the Bill, in substantial measure, fall within a functional area listed in Schedule 4 to the Constitution.
- 6.5 The Bill primarily seeks to give effect to the Constitution and the Republic's obligations regarding prejudice and intolerance in terms of international law and also seeks to prevent, combat and to regulate the offence of hate crime and the offence of hate speech and the prosecution of persons who commit these crimes and also provides for the appropriate sentences that may be imposed on persons who commit these offences. The Bill also provides for the prevention of hate crimes and hate speech, for the empowerment and support of victims of hate crimes and hate speech and also for effective enforcement measures. The Bill intends to ensure that there is co-ordinated implementation, application and administration of the envisaged Prevention and Combating of Hate Crimes and Hate Speech Act along with the Criminal Procedure Act, 1977, the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1997, and the Child Justice Act, 2008.

- 6.6 The provisions of the Bill have been carefully examined to establish whether, in substantial measure, they fall within any of the functional areas listed in Schedule 4 to the Constitution.
- 6.7 The subject matter of the provisions of the Bill does not fall within any of the functional areas listed in Schedule 4 to the Constitution and it does not affect provinces whereby the procedure set out in section 76 of the Constitution would be applicable.
- 6.8 Since the Bill does not deal with any of the matters listed in Schedule 4 of the Constitution, it must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure set out in section 75 of the Constitution.
- 6.9 It is not necessary to refer this Bill to the National House of Traditional Leaders in terms of section 18(1)(a) of the Traditional Leadership and Governance Framework Act, 2003 (Act No. 41 of 2003), since it does not contain provisions pertaining to customary law or customs of traditional communities.
