MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE NATIONAL RAILWAY SAFETY REGULATOR AMENDMENT BILL, 2008

1. BACKGROUND

The Bill seeks to amend the National Railway Safety Regulator Act, 2002 (Act No. 16 of 2002) (“the Act”). The Act established the Railway Safety Regulator (RSR) which provides safe railway systems and operations. The Act has been in operation since 20 September 2002, and in the process of implementing it certain amendments to the Act have become necessary.

2. CLAUSE-BY-CLAUSE EXPLANATION

2.1 Clause 1 will amend certain definitions, as follows: The definition of “dangerous goods” is amended to remove the specific reference to the SABS standards specifications.

The definition of “network” is amended to make it clear that the network includes freight terminals, cargo depots, goods sidings etc., which are accordingly removed from the definition of “station”.

The definition of “network operator” is amended to clarify the responsibilities of such operators, and to include the authorisation and direction of train movements which previously fell under the responsibilities of the “train operator”. The possibility of having more than one operator of a network is also included, to cater for possible future changes in the institutional arrangements regarding ownership of rail infrastructure.

The definition of “station” is amended to make it clear that stations only refer to places where passengers enter or leave trains, and to include modal exchanges and commercial and retail premises for the purposes of crowd management and security. That part of the network that runs through a station is excluded, to avoid the duplication of responsibilities.

The definition of “train operator” is amended to exclude the responsibility to control the movement of rolling stock, which is the responsibility of the network operator. The possibility of having more than one operator on a network is also included.

Clause 1 also amends section 1(7) of the Act to make it clear that a threat to safety will also include behaviour that can develop into an unsafe situation.

2.2 Clause 2 amends section 3 of the Act to provide that the Minister may also declare a system with a track gauge of less than 600 mm as a railway for purposes of the Act (although this is unlikely in practice), and to provide that the RSR may exempt railways from the operation of the Act in consultation with the Regulator, rather than the Minister. It is considered unnecessary for the Minister to make such decisions, but the Minister should be consulted in making such decisions. It is also amended to empower the Minister to include monorails, trams and fixed rail or track systems running on pneumatic tyres.

2.3 Clause 3 amends section 5 of the Act to clarify that operators remain responsible for railway safety and that the function of the RSR is to promote rail safety, not to promote utilisation of the rail mode. Increased safety will hopefully lead to an increased use of the rail mode, but the promotion of rail as such is not the responsibility of the RSR.

2.4 Clause 4 amends section 6 of the Act, and requires the RSR to conclude co-operation agreements with the entities mentioned in that section, to allow the RSR to enter into appropriate arrangements as well as formal agreements.

2.5 Clause 5 amends section 7 of the Act, and provides that recognised operator organisations will advise the RSR in general terms and not act on its behalf in developing standards. Subsection (2)(n) is deleted because it is a duplication of subsection (2)(c). Section 7(1)(b) is also amended to clarify the Regulator's role in relation to the transporting of dangerous goods by rail.

It should be noted that section 8 of the Act on the appointment of board members will be amended by the Transport Agencies General Amendment Bill of 2008, which is being introduced to Parliament.

- 2.6 Clause 6 amends section 9 of the Act and provides that it will no longer be necessary for the Minister of Finance to be involved in determining the terms and conditions of service of the chief executive officer "(ceo)". The terms and conditions will be determined by the board after consulting the Minister of Transport. The section is also amended to provide that the board must submit the RSR's annual report to the Minister within five months after the end of the financial year, rather than three. This will bring the Act in line with the Public Finance Management Act, 1999 (Act No. 1 of 1999).
- 2.7 Clause 7 amends section 10 of the Act to provide that the ceo may appoint staff without having to obtain specific directions from the board in each case. This will be a more practical arrangement.
- 2.8 Clause 8 amends section 11 of the Act to provide that the ceo may delegate his or her functions to RSR staff members. This appears to have been an omission in the Act.
- 2.9 Clause 9 amends section 17 of the Act to provide that the funds of the RSR will also include the penalties to be provided for in the new clause 45A, and fees to be charged by the RSR for providing training and advice related to its functions in terms of the proposed amended section 17, as well as other fees or income sources that may be prescribed in regulations.
- 2.10 Clause 10 amends section 23 of the Act to provide that the RSR may charge fees, not only for processing safety permit applications, but also for administering those permits. It also provides that such fees may differ according to stated criteria, e.g. the size of the relevant rail operation.
- 2.11 Clause 11 amends section 24 of the Act to make it clear that standard conditions applicable to safety permits do not have to be categorised according to the categories mentioned in section 22(1), but that they may differ according to types of permits as well.
- 2.12 Clause 12 amends section 29 of the Act to make provision that the Minister may make regulations to adopt or accept existing standards as well as provide for the development of new standards.
- 2.13 Clause 13 amends section 30 of the Act to provide that the Minister may also make regulations on new operations that may impact on safe railway operations, and not only constructions. The Minister may also make regulations on minimum qualifications of or training for personnel in relation to safety, and may qualify categories of railway staff.
- 2.14 Clause 14 amends section 32 of the Act to provide that the ceo may appoint railway safety inspectors rather than the Minister. It is considered unnecessary to burden the Minister with such duties.
- 2.15 Clause 15 amends section 33 of the Act to empower railway safety inspectors to investigate matters such as the packaging, marking and classification of dangerous goods prior to their loading onto a train, in the event of a railway occurrence where it is suspected that such activities could have contributed to the occurrence.

2.16 Clause 16 amends section 38 of the Act to provide that operators must conduct investigations into railway occurrences that take place in connection with their railway operations, and to empower the RSR to require operators to conduct investigations into such occurrences where appropriate. Section 38 is also amended to empower the board, in conducting investigations, to summon witnesses to appear before it or to produce documents or objects in their possession or under their control, and to question such persons.

2.17 Clause 17 amends section 40 of the Act to empower the RSR to request information from persons for any reason related to its activities, rather than only for the purposes of information and monitoring systems.

2.18 Clause 18 inserts a new section 45A into the Act to empower the Minister to make regulations providing that the RSR may impose penalties where operators fail to comply with standards or requirements imposed under the Act, or with permit conditions. Where penalties are imposed, operators will be able to appeal to the Minister or to an official of the Department of Transport designated by the Minister.

3. DEPARTMENT/BODIES CONSULTED

During the public participation process a wide range of stakeholders were consulted, including the following:

- Ingwe Collieries;
- City of Tshwane;
- Moqhaka Municipality, Kroonstad;
- Spoornet;
- Metro Rail/SARCC;
- Chairman of Heritage Railway Association;
- South African Port Operations Head Office;
- African Rail & Traction;
- Rovos Rail;
- Stanstone Heritage Trust; and
- Umngeni Steam Railway.

4. FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS

The Bill is expected to have the following financial implications:

- (a) The revenue of the RSR will be increased by being able to charge fees for training and advice, and for charging additional fees for administering permits, and not only for processing permit applications.
- (b) The RSR will earn additional revenue from penalties, but the Act will impose a duty on it to reduce such penalties as the level of compliance increases.

5. IMPLICATIONS FOR PROVINCES

The Minister may include railway systems that are introduced by provinces, including monorail systems, trams and systems running on pneumatic tyres, in the ambit of the Act.

6. IMPLICATIONS FOR MUNICIPALITIES

Similarly, the Minister may include monorail systems, trams and systems running on pneumatic tyres that may be introduced by municipalities in the future, in the ambit of the Act.

7. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

7.1 The State Law Advisers and the Department of Transport are of the opinion that this Bill must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure established by section 76(1) or (2) of the Constitution since it falls within a functional area listed in Schedule 4 to the Constitution, namely “Public Transport”.

7.2 The State Law Advisers are of the opinion that it is not necessary to refer this Bill to the National House of Traditional Leaders in terms of section 18(1)(a) of the Traditional Leadership and Governance Framework Act, 2003 (Act No. 41 of 2003), since it does not contain provisions pertaining to customary law or customs of traditional communities.
